Introduction

Agriculture has been the backbone of the Indian economy since ages. With many rivers crisscrossing the Indian subcontinent, the land in India provided a very good ground for agriculture and stood to be the land of one of the oldest civilizations of the world. Being one of the most densely populated countries of the world, India's share in agriculture production is also high and this sector contributes to about 18% of the GDP. India stands to be among the top 10 agriculture exporter in the world and more than 50% of its work force has been directly or indirectly involved in the agriculture sector.
